

ESTHETIC DANCING AND GAMES BY GIRLS AT SCHOOL PHYSICAL DEMONSTRATION

GOOD, healthy, romping games to quicken the pulse and keep agile the body; military marching tactics, representing cooperation, poise and control, and esthetic dancing in which the mind, spirit and body unite in perfect expression of rhythmic grace formed the basis of the annual demonstration of the physical training department of the El Paso School for girls, given Thursday afternoon in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian association. Miss Georgia Martin, physical training director of the school, directed the exhibition in a most capable manner. The girls showed careful drill and executed the many and varied numbers on the program in a most satisfactory manner, receiving hearty applause from the large number of friends and patrons of the school who attended the demonstration.

The program opened with a march in which all the students of the school participated. Some novel figures were executed in this. Following this, the pupils of the upper school performed a free arm exercise that was very good. The primary and intermediate department students then danced a group of four folk dances. The "Shoemaker's dance," a German dance, a Swedish dance and a Highland Scottish dance. Then the first section of the upper school executed a waltz drill to the music of "Molly Dear," which included some interesting pointing and balancing exercises. The upper school students gave a group of three folk dances with music, a waltz, a waltz and a waltz.

The dancers in this group were Louise Beach, Alethea Coffin, Eleanor Falconer, Lydia Happer, Lillian Kleinman, Dorothy Knott, Mildred LaSalle, Charlotte Ormshaw, Margaret Ormshaw, Elizabeth Platt, Betty Safford, Minnie Silverman, Dorothy Walker, Katherine White, Nancy Williams and Lillian Wiseman.

SISAL LABORERS VIRTUAL SLAVES

Washington, D. C., April 20.—Mexican sisal harvesters and many workmen on the United Railway of Yucatan are practically slaves, according to the testimony before the senate investigation today by Frederick W. Blake, former general manager of the railroad. Attempts to relieve that condition have been futile, he declared, because the workmen have not the moral strength to assume the responsibilities and obligations of free workmen.

These laborers, he explained, earned barely a living and many owed their employers considerable money. "They had to work whether they wanted to or not," he testified. "If an employer left, the employer would notify the police and he was brought back. An employer who wanted to get laborers could buy a debtor's services by paying his debts."
